CIANO DENIES PROMISE

Fuehrer Ready To Accept Responsibility For Millions Of Lives

By H. R. Knickerbocker
PARIS, Aug. 25—Any talk at this moment of active cooperation between Soviet Russia and Germany to partition Poland bears unmistakable signs of serving Germany's desire to terrorize that nation into submission. But confirmation was received today from Italian sources that the red-brown Nazi-Bolsheviks have indeed agreed to divide between them the territory of their neighbors.

From Italian sources which may properly be described as the best informed in all Europe, International News Service learns that Chancellor Hitler has allowed his axis partner, Benito Mussolini, to believe:

First, that there will be no war because Poland cannot withstand the double menace of the Red army and the Reichswehr.

Second, that Poland will surrender either without fighting at all or after a short and sharp struggle.

Third, that Russia will occupy immediately Estonia, Latvia and the northern part of Poland while Germany takes everything up to the Vistula river, leaving a small strip to be called "The Congress of Poland" between its capital at Warsaw.

Italians Uncertain

The effect of these plans thus revealed by Hitler to Italy has been deeply to disquiet the leaders of Italian policy, particularly inasmuch as they were not informed beforehand of Hitler's intention to sign a pact with Russia.

Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano also was profoundly affected by his meeting at Berchtesgaden with Hitler. For the first time in Ciano's experience, Hitler, who at previous meetings with the Italians had been a quiet and courteous host, was now in one of his fits of fury.

Whereas hitherto the Italians believed they had a partnership with a man who might use threat or force to get his way but would remain balanced and never actually go to war, they are now convinced by his behavior at Berchtesgaden that he is truly ready to take on himself full responsibility for risking the lives of tens of millions.

Adolf Not Bluffing

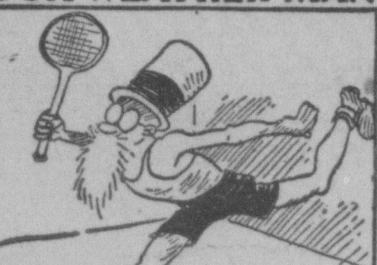

In other words, he is not bluffing, but will insist on conquering Poland no matter what the resistance may be from any quarter.

The net effect on the Italians was to strengthen their desire to stay out of conflict which, whatever other outcome it may have, seems certain to bring destruction to Italy.

The most marked sign of hesitation came when Ciano after the Berchtesgaden meeting informed the British ambassador:

"I did not tell Hitler that we approved. I did not say that we would go with him into war."

JURY TO PROBE STABBING CASE

September Court Term To Open Sept. 5; 18 Charges To Be Investigated

The Pickaway county grand jury of the September term of court will meet Sept. 5.

George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, said Friday that about 18 cases are scheduled for consideration by the jury.

One case is that of Charles Buskirk, 70, of S. Scioto street, charged with stabbing with intent to kill Elmer Merriman, 39, of Town street, extra police officer, on Aug. 6. Buskirk was bound to the grand jury in Mayor W. B. Cady's court and provided $3,000 bond. Merriman was wounded in the left chest. Mr. Gerhardt said most of the other cases were of a "routine" nature.

The suit against the county commissioners asking a writ of mandamus to require the board to repair a bridge in Washington township damaged by flood waters in July has been assigned for Sept. 11. The suit was filed by property owners along the "Old Road," extending from Route 22.

CHILE UPRISING BLASTED; CHIEF REBELS NABBED

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Aug. 25—A military uprising against the regime of President Aguirre Cerda broke out today but, the government said, was quickly put down.

An official communique stated that one regiment revolted this morning and that the uprising "probably was instigated" by General Ibanez.

"But the government has got the situation under complete control," the communique added.

General Ibanez and the other rebel leader, Ariosto Herrera, were arrested, officials announced, and complete order was restored at Tacna, where the movement started.

WILLIAM MCKELL DIES AT RESIDENCE IN CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, Aug. 25—William McKell, 68, head of the McKell Coal & Coke Co., of Glen Jean, W. Va., died Thursday of acute nephritis at his home here.

He was born in Chillicothe, March 5, 1871. Mr. McKell was graduated from Yale in 1893 and after postgraduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology he joined the McKell company. After the death of his father, Thomas G. McKell, he assumed control of the corporation. Mr. McKell has resided in Chillicothe since 1937, returning when his health began to fail.

TWO COLUMBUS YOUTHS, SELLING WATCH, HELD

Two Columbus youths, Francis Ray, 17, of 225 Innis avenue, and Joseph Pierce, 18, of 564 Jefferson avenue, were returned to that city Thursday afternoon after being apprehended by Police Chief William McCrady and Deputy Sheriff Earl Weaver.

The police chief said the youths were attempting to sell a watch worth about $55. They were returned by Columbus police for questioning.

Here's How Russo-German Pact Isolates Poland

This map graphically illustrates how the non-aggression pact between Russia and Germany virtually cuts off Poland physically from any quick aid by England and France. Poland is now flanked by a hostile Germany on the West and South and a neutral Russia on the East. Should war come, Germany's move would, naturally, be to pinch off the so-called Polish Corridor, thereby cutting Poland off from the sea and completely isolating that country. Countries depicted in black above are the Rome-Berlin axis powers. The shaded area is neutral Russia.

GERMANS READY IN THREE AREAS

London Reports Soldiers Being Concentrated To Strike Poles

LONDON, Aug. 25—Germany's vast armies plan to strike at Poland from three great concentrations, according to a Reuters summary of the military set-up received from Berlin.

With more troops being brought up rapidly through areas prohibited to aircraft, this is the strategy set-up, according to Reuters:

The main German concentration is in East Prussia, where 10 or 11 divisions, including the famous First Army Corps, have assembled. These troops are to march straight down the eastern bank of Poland's Vistula river if war breaks out.

Another big concentration is in Pomerania, opposite Poland's port of Gdynia, and a third is near Breslau. The Pomeranian column is scheduled to march directly across the Corridor to Danzig, and the Breslau units to strike in a northeasterly direction at South Poland.

Reuters said it was believed that 22 or 23 divisions are now lined up around the Polish frontiers.

ROOSEVELT SEES TERRIFIC BLAST HIGH HOPE FOR KILLS MANY IN END OF DANGER BRITISH CENTER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—President Roosevelt today announced he still has hopes for a peaceful solution of the European crisis and does not intend to summon congress into special session for the time being.

The President, who made direct appeals yesterday to Italy, Germany and Poland to preserve peace in Europe, said he had not yet received any replies from the European governments. The pleas were sent to Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of Germany, King Victor Emanuel of Italy and President Moscicki of Poland.

Both the "1940 Wheat Plan" and crop insurance applications must be signed before Sept. 30 or the date of seeding wheat, whichever is the earlier.

Three meetings will be held in each township on the program. Meetings will be held Monday, Aug. 28, between 1 and 5 p. m., and 7 and 10 p. m., and on Tuesday, Aug. 29, between 7 and 10 p. m.

Places of the meetings follow: Circleville township at the county A.A.A. office, Darby township house, Deer Creek township house, Harrison township at Duvall school, Jackson school, Madison school, Monroe township house, Muhlenberg township house, Perry township in Atlanta school, and Pickaway, Salt Creek, Scioto, Walnut, Washington and Wayne schools.

OHIO STATE FAIR READY TO OPEN SATURDAY AT 5

COLUMBUS, Aug. 25—Ohio State Fair officials today prepared to open the gates of the annual exposition tomorrow with boys and girls under 21 scheduled to pour into the fairgrounds.

Meanwhile, those in charge of livestock exhibits searched for additional space in which to place the record number of entries for this year's fair.

Junior Fair Manager B. P. Sandles announced that more than 30,000 boys and girls are taking part in the Junior event.

Although the fair proper does not get under way until Monday, entries must be in place in time for the 5 a. m. opening tomorrow. A daily racing program has been scheduled. A horse show will be presented each night in the Fairgrounds coliseum beginning Monday.

WAUSEON WRECK KILLS ONE AND INJURES OTHERS

WAUSEON, Aug. 25—Edward J. Lloyd, 55-year-old Pontiac, Mich., contractor, was killed today and two other persons were injured seriously in an auto collision near Wauseon.

Lloyd's wife, Nelle, 46, and Patrick Rose, 40, of Steubenville, an occupant of the other car, were reported in critical condition in a hospital with fractured skulls and internal injuries. Dino Calini, of Steubenville, who was with Rose, suffered a broken leg.

Authorities said Lloyd was vice president and secretary of the Bartling Dull Co., of Pontiac.

HOT WATER HURTS BABY

Thelma May Hartman, eight-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hartman, of Stoutsville, was taken to Berger hospital early Friday after receiving third degree abdomen burns when a sister accidentally spilled boiling water on her.

However, if conditions abroad become more serious, Early will cut short his vacation and return to Washington.

On European Front

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

Immediate rejection by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of President Roosevelt's latest peace plea was indicated in Berlin today as the frenzied war scare of yesterday subsided to some degree. Developments:

BERLIN—As Germany prepared an appropriate answer to Roosevelt, Hitler was said to remain hopeful of a warless solution, but it was hinted the Reich "may be compelled" to intervene in Danzig and the Polish Corridor "to restore order and safeguard German national interests."

PARIS—H. R. Knickerbocker revealed that Italy has not yet promised to aid Germany if a new war arises from the Polish crisis.

WASHINGTON—While preparations to care for American interests in case of war moved rapidly ahead, the White House watched reaction to the President's notes to three capitals. He asked Chancellor Hitler of Germany and President Moscicki of Poland to submit their dispute to conciliation or arbitration, and called on King Victor Emmanuel of Italy to intervene for peace.

BERLIN—Hitler studied the Roosevelt note, but authorities pointed out (1) Germany considers the Polish dispute strictly a German affair; (2) Hitler is opposed to neutral arbitration as disadvantageous to Germany. Mr. Roosevelt was accused of meddling and acting as England's cat's paw. Nazis looked for a solution of the Polish dispute by this weekend.

WARSAW—Poland appeared reluctant to accept arbitration, fearing for her "vital interests" in Danzig.

ROME—"Profoundly impressed" by the Roosevelt note, the King turned it over to Premier Mussolini.

LONDON—Britain rushed war preparations, convinced that Hitler will turn a deaf ear to Mr. Roosevelt.

DANZIG—The German cadet ship Schleswig-Holstein arrived in a demonstration of German naval power.

PARIS—Women and children were being evacuated from eastern France to Brittany as more than 2,000,000 went to their war stations.

Berlin Charges Polish Raiders Kill Eight German, Czech Citizens In Moravian Area; Warsaw Claims Nazis Violate Borders

BERLIN, Aug. 25—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler unexpectedly called British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson to the chancellery today. The reason for the call could not be learned immediately.

At his last meeting with Hitler, Henderson met with a sharp rebuff when he attempted to express Britain's concern over the possibility of war.

Henderson's visit was looked on in some well-informed circles as a possible turning point in the crisis.

Word of his call spread throughout Berlin like wild-fire. The possibility of a "sell-out" by Poland or her new-found allies was a subject for keen speculation.

BERLIN, Aug. 25—Charges that a Polish raiding party killed eight German and Czech citizens at Maehrisch-Ostrau, Moravia, and wounded seven others were made by the Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe today.

The shootings occurred, the paper alleged, when an armed band of Poles headed by a police lieutenant arrested 25 German and Czech nationals on charges of subversive activities. The victims were shot down in attempting to escape, it was said.

WARSAW, Aug. 25—Several violations of the Polish-German border by Nazi soldiers were reported today in the district between Rybnik and Katowitz.

Police arrested a young German at Dzwonkowiec in a raid which allegedly uncovered large quantities of arms and ammunitions as well as Swastika badges.

DANZIG, Aug. 25—Strong Polish troop concentrations in the Polish Corridor near Kartschenken, Kokoschken and Goldkrug were reported by the Nazi newspaper Vorposten today.

BERLIN, Aug. 25—Prompt rejection by Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of President Roosevelt's latest plea for peaceful solution of Europe's problems was clearly indicated by circles close to him today.

At the same time, it was believed that the Fuehrer, anxious to demonstrate the legality of his claims against Poland, will not resort to direct attack. According to best-informed German circles, however, the Reich "may be compelled to restore order and safeguard German national interests in Danzig and the Polish Corridor."

Hitler arose at 9 a. m. He had only a few hours sleep, as the council of war held at the chancellery last night did not break up until almost dawn.

The message from Mr. Roosevelt was placed on his desk shortly after he entered his office. The exact nature of his rejection was not made known, but Germany's first semi-official answer will be contained in tonight's issue of the foreign office publication Diplomatic Correspondence.

"To Wrong Address"

This organ is expected to take the attitude that Central Europe is Germany's problem and no concern of the United States, and that in any case Mr. Roosevelt once again has sent his message "to the wrong address."

The German view is that the President's inferential accusations against the totalitarian states are unfounded, and that it is time he "directed his gospel toward Britain."

Meanwhile, the zero hour for settlement of the dispute remained in a state of postponement, although intense diplomatic activity continued. It was indicated in Nazi circles, somewhat taken aback by the "stubborn Polish attitude," that Soviet Russia was taking a hand in the behind the scenes activities.

It was reported that the Soviet (Continued on Page Four)

Brief Notes From Scene Of Dispute

LONDON, Aug. 25—The British government today recalled to duty beginning tomorrow 3,000 first reserve metropolitan police pensioners.

These reserves, it was believed, would replace regular policemen who have been called up for military service.

BELGRADE, Aug. 25—The Yugoslavian cabinet headed by Premier Dragisa Zvetkovic resigned today. The effect of the resignation on the agreement reached yesterday for Croatian autonomy could not be learned immediately.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 25—The Belgian cabinet decided today to place the nation in a "state of defense." An appeal to the nation to remain calm was issued by the government.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—War risk insurance rates on American goods and property in Danzig and Gdynia, Poland, and on vessels bound for Germany and Italy were increased again today for the third time this week.

PARIS, Aug. 25—Italian border guards today prevented a group of Italian laborers from crossing the frontier into France at Vintimille, according to reports received in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 25—Enforcing its powers to control the press, the French government today seized the Communist newspaper L'Humanite and the leftist paper Ce Soir. Officials prevented distribution of further copies of the two papers.

PLEA FOR PEACE BY F. D. R. KEEPS N. Y. MART FIRM

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—The stock market showed a firm tone at the opening today, awaiting the outcome of President Roosevelt's plea for peace abroad.

Sears Roebuck and Anaconda each started $1 a share higher. U. S. Steel was unchanged and Chrysler advanced 12½ cents a share. General Motors was unchanged. Several leaders were somewhat lower including U. S. Rubber and Woolworth.

U. S. LINER INSTRUCTED TO MISS HAMBURG CALL

BERLIN, Aug. 25—The United States lines today ordered the liner President Roosevelt to avoid stopping at Hamburg on its present voyage, remaining over at Le Havre instead. The action was described as a "precautionary measure."

'40 WHEAT PROGRAM SIGN UP TO START DURING NEXT WEEK

Pickaway county farmers will have an opportunity within the next few days to sign up for participation in the 1940 A.A.A. wheat program.

Individual farm allotments under the 1940 wheat program went in the mails Friday. They were sent to all owners and tenants on Pickaway county farms. With the mailing of individual farm allotments, the county A.A.A. committee announced a series of community meetings for the next week to explain and sign applications for the 1940 wheat program.

By signing the form, which is similar to the farm plan used for the 1939 program last Spring, the farmer indicates that he intends to participate in the wheat program by planting within the acreage allotment for his farm.

Only by signing the wheat plan may a farmer become eligible for a 1940 parity payment on wheat. Unless the form is signed, the farm will not be checked for compliance with the parity payment program next year.

Insurance Available
An opportunity will be given all wheat growers to secure crop insurance on their 1940 wheat crop at the same time they sign the "1940 Wheat Plan." The yields that may be insured and premium rates have been determined for all wheat farms in the county and all the forms are on hand for completing applications. This year the insurance is being written in one operation. All the grower has to do is to fill out the application, indicate the acreage he intends to plant and pay the premium.

The suit against the county commissioners asking a writ of mandamus to require the board to repair a bridge in Washington township damaged by flood waters in July has been assigned for Sept. 11. The suit was filed by property owners along the "Old Road," extending from Route 22.

F. D. CONGRATULATES AIDE, SAYS HE'S FEELING FINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 — President Roosevelt today stated that he feels better at 57 than he did when he was 50 years old.

The President made the remarks as he extended congratulations to Stephen Early, his secretary, on the occasion of Early's 50th birthday today.

Early, showered with congratulations from the regular corps of newspapermen who "cover" the White House, planned to celebrate by leaving for a two weeks vacation later today.

However, if conditions abroad become more serious, Early will cut short his vacation and return to Washington.

260 Pheasants To Be Put Out In Townships
During Weekend

About 100 members of the Pickaway County Farmer's and Sportsman's association attended the outing held Thursday evening at Gold Cliff park.

After a picnic supper of roast beef and cheese sandwiches and corn-on-the-cob, the sportsmen enjoyed a social evening. Some enjoyed trap shooting. No casting contests were held.

W. E. Wheelock, chief of the division of lakes and parks of the state conservation department, spoke briefly on the new hunting laws.

Harry Bartholomew, secretary, announced Friday that 260 pheasants, the last of a total of 1,015 raised by the organization at the farm of B. S. Millar near South Bloomfield, will be released in the various township of the county next Sunday. All pheasants raised by the organization have been released in Pickaway county. The young birds were obtained from the conservation department.

AT THE GRAND

The easiest job he ever had in his life came to comedian Tom Dugan, doing a bit-rol with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer in Universal's John M. Stahl production, "When Tomorrow Comes," which starts Sunday at the Grand theatre.

Dugan did his bit lying on a beam on a pier. As Irene Dunne and Boyer passed, Boyer asked: "Aren't you afraid you'll fall in the river?"

Without moving, Dugan answered with a six-word speech:

"What have I got to lose?"

It is his entire bit in the picture. Dugan waited (and slept on the plank) for three days before Director Stahl got around to filming his acting assignment.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The widely-awaited appearance of Robert Taylor and the sensational Hedy Lamarr in "Lady of the Tropics," a languorous drama of smouldering passions laid against an exotic background of Indo-China, occurs Sunday at the Cliftona theatre in what is heralded as the most fascinating romance of the year.

A dramatic tale of an adventurous American and a beautiful half-caste of the Orient, the picture surrounds Taylor and Miss Lamarr with lavish settings reminiscent of the mysticism and splendors of the Far East in a story written by Ben Hecht.

Three years in preparation, "Lady of the Tropics" brings to the screen for the first time a panorama of background scenes of little-known places of Indo-China and Cambodia which were filmed by a photographic expedition exclusively for the picture.

The love story has its beginning in the harbor of Saigon, with its teeming Oriental traffic of ocean liners off-shore, quaint native craft at the docks, natives babbling in the colorful, narrow market places and caparisoned elephants and oxen lumbering through the streets.

Facts About Hollywood

IT'S TRUE: that Lionel Barrymore today ranks as Hollywood's most distinguished character star. Actor, musician, composer, illustrator and director, he has devoted his distinguished life to the arts. Son of Maurice Barrymore, brother of Ethel and John, he was born in Philadelphia on April 28th. He made his stage debut with his parents at the age of five. Barrymore is a cosmopolitan, having globe-trotted since youth. Barrymore's career is a classic of American history. He first appeared on the screen in 1909 in the D. W. Griffith production of "Friends."

26 Countians Injured In July Industrial Mishaps

Twenty-six claims were filed with the Industrial Commission during July by Pickaway county workers. In the list there were nine with over seven days loss of time, four with seven days or less, and 13 were medical cases. The time loss for the months was 231 days.

Probably influenced to a great extent by an unseasonable advance in employment, accident frequency and severity in Ohio industries rose sharply in July. A report issued by Supt. Thos. P. Kearns of the Division of Safety and Hygiene shows that during the month, 16,791 injury and occupational disease claims, including 82 fatalities, were filed with the Industrial Commission. This is 1,363 more claims and 15 more fatalities than were reported in June.

Distribution of fatal claims among industrial groups was as follows: Construction and public employees, 11 each; commercial, nine; blast furnaces, steel works and rolling mills, seven; metal goods, five, clay, glass and stone products and foods and beverages, four each; paper and printing, mining, utilities, cartage and trucking, clerical and professional and care and custody of buildings and grounds, three each; chemicals and allied products, laundries, textiles and clothing manufacture and transportation, two each; agriculture, assembling and erecting machinery, vehicle manufacture and quarries and stone crushing, one each.

Metal goods continued to lead in non-fatal injuries with 3,476. Commercial had 2,435, construction 1,050, blast furnaces, steel works and rolling mills 1,308, foods and beverages 1,016, care and custody 887, public employees 764, machinery manufacture 730 and paper and printing 518.

Handling objects displaced machinery as the chief cause of accidents, with 3,057 cases, including three fatalities. Machinery caused 2,953, with one fatality, stepping upon or striking against objects, 2,249 with two fatalities; hand tools, 1,699 with no fatalities; falls of persons, 1,625 with eight fatalities; hot, corrosive and poisonous substances, 1,054 with four fatalities and industrially operated motor vehicles, 853 with 18 fatalities. The latter cause was accountable for more than 22 per cent of all fatal accidents.

260 Pheasants To Be Put Out In Townships During Weekend

About 100 members of the Pickaway County Farmer's and Sportsman's association attended the outing held Thursday evening at Gold Cliff park.

After a picnic supper of roast beef and cheese sandwiches and corn-on-the-cob, the sportsmen enjoyed a social evening. Some enjoyed trap shooting. No casting contests were held.

W. E. Wheelock, chief of the division of lakes and parks of the state conservation department, spoke briefly on the new hunting laws.

Harry Bartholomew, secretary, announced Friday that 260 pheasants, the last of a total of 1,015 raised by the organization at the farm of B. S. JAPS, REBUFFED BY NAZIS, LOOK TO U. S., BRITAIN

Foreign Minister Declares Anti-Comintern Pact Disrupted Now

ARTICLE FOUR BROKEN

Tokyo's Soldiers To Be Withdrawn From Area Of Hong Kong

TOKYO, Aug. 25—Japan today virtually bade farewell to her anti-comintern powers, Germany and Italy, and set out to woo the United States and Great Britain.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, in a highly significant statement, said: "Japan must now dispose of the China affair single-handed."

In a placatory vein, he explained: "The important fact about the construction of a 'new order' in East Asia is the elimination of obstruction by third powers against Japanese military rights in China."

"That, however, does not mean the suppression of the legitimate rights of those powers."

To this the foreign office spokesman added that Japan considered that Article IV of the Soviet-German pact violated the anti-comintern agreement. That article provided that neither of the Moscow signatories would associate itself with any bloc of powers directly or indirectly aimed at the other party.

The spokesman denied that Japan had been invited to join the Moscow non-aggression pact for a three-power front against Great Britain.

Instead, he said, Japan was willing to resume the Anglo-Japanese parleys concerning Tientsin and broader questions of China policy when Britain invites Nippon to do so.

The foreign office mouthpiece contributed what seemed a final coffin-nail to Japanese continuation in the anti-comintern front with the announcement that Japanese representatives now would not attend the Nazi congress in Nuremberg Sept. 2.

The Japanese delegation is due in Italy Monday.

Scene of Escapes, Warden

Airview London, O., farm Superintendent Jenkins

THIS is London Prison Farm at London, O., from which 12 convicts have escaped in four different breaks during the last three weeks. Following the last break, in which two convicts simply "walked off," Superintendent T. C. Jenkins asked for a six-month leave of absence because of illness.

INMATES AWAIT VIEW OF BOSS

Henderson At Prison To Begin Duties; London Shakeup Looms

COLUMBUS, Aug. 25 — Four thousand inmates of Ohio penitentiary today awaited their first glimpse of their new "boss," Warden Frank D. Henderson.

A former adjutant general of Ohio and a brigadier general, the new penal official was appointed yesterday by the Republican Bricker administration although he had served under two Democratic governors.

Henderson took charge of the prison as soon as he was appointed but said it would be several days before he would make a tour of inspection of the prison. He said his administration would be one of "fairness and justice" to all, but he added: "They'll know I'm warden."

Meanwhile, a possible change in management loomed at the London Prison farm, where Superintendent T. C. Jenkins has requested a six-month leave of absence because of illness.

Jenkins conferred yesterday with Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, but although they admitted they had discussed the matter, neither had anything to say about it.

Sherwood indicated he would go to the prison farm Monday and was expected to announce his decision at that time. The welfare chief recently conducted an investigation of the farm, from which a dozen prisoners have escaped within the past month.

The director added that he would appoint a successor before Oct. 1 to A. R. Harsh, superintendent of the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster, who resigned recently. Harsh still is in charge.

HUBBY STEALER STRIPPED NUDE, BEATEN BY WIFE

CHICAGO, Aug. 25 — A 24-year-old housewife faced a variety of charges today on the complaint of Rosalie Cummings, 18, that she was kidnapped by the older woman, stripped nude and beaten severely.

Police said the housewife, Mrs. Grace Chagalis, admitted the charges, saying she had decided to "take the law into my own hands" to break up an affair between the Cummings girl and her husband, Peter Chagalis, 27.

"I had caught Rosalie and my husband in an apartment several times," detectives quoted Mrs. Chagalis. "So, when I made her go home with me to listen to what I had to say, I decided to strip off her clothing. Then I lost my temper and started to beat her."

SOPHIA TUCKER OUSTER BRINGS MANY PROTESTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Wide-spread strikes in the amusement industry from Broadway to Hollywood were threatened today as a result of the indefinite suspension meted out to Sophia Tucker, "last of the red hot mamas," by the Actors Equity Association.

Miss Tucker's 30-year stage career was threatened with abrupt termination for affiliating her American Federation of Actors with the stage hands' union after the A. F. A. was recently suspended by its parent of A. F. of L. group.

The equity decree prohibiting all actors from appearing on the same stage with Miss Tucker threatened the employment of 116 persons in a musical show in which she stars which was scheduled for September 4 re-opening. The stage hands have threatened to strike if Miss Tucker is ruled off the stage and the actors have threatened retaliation, principally in Hollywood.

Met Fred D. Richey, the hybrid corn breeder, this morning. He has just returned, he said, from a 2500 mile trip through Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, and Missouri where he inspected his various corn plots.

During the two weeks he was away, his yield test at Roger Hedges that looked so fine a few weeks ago, suffered from the dry weather like other corn around here. Thought maybe Mr. Richey would be blue but he was the opposite, enthusiastic. Told me that conditions had brought out marked differences in drought resistance among the different hybrids. No one wants 200 hybrids, he said. The thing is to find a few which will stand drought or most anything else they must stand when farmers grow them.

He then explained that these hybrids are being tested in several states. In some there have been cinchbugs, in some storms, and so on. So this gives the equivalent of several years' testing in one, and makes for a safer evaluation of the hybrids, he concluded.

Talked to several farmers here who told us that much of the field corn is not ripening but "simply drying up". The late corn is especially hurt, they said. "Fly Free Day" for wheat seeding is named by State Entomologist Thad Parks as October 1. Sure, we're not forgetting to tell you that Thad is an Ashville high school product.

Clyde Bricker is to be one of the small army of helpers who'll run the state fair this year, beginning Saturday. . . . Rev. H. D. Fudge and family have returned home from their vacation.

The county library truck here Tuesday, did the usual good volume of business. It is scheduled for here for Tuesday, Sept. 5, 11 till 2 o'clock Long street, and from 2 till 4 at school grounds.

Bernard Bryan, of Chillicothe, is here as substitute grocery clerk while Elmer Yeates is off duty on a week's vacation. Mr. Bryan has been with the grocery firm for half dozen years, beginning work while in high school, he said.

At the roadside ditch, at and east of the Madison township school building, arrangements are under way to install a 24-inch sewer a distance 1300 feet and at an estimate cost of $1800, the cost to be borne by county, township trustees and school board.

FRANCO'S AIDES HINT SPAIN TO STAY NEUTRAL

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 25—Belief that Spain is drawing away from the axis as a result of the Russo-German pact grew today as reports from Madrid predicted that Spain was affirm its neutrality in case of war. This opinion was expressed after Generalissimo Francisco Franco conferred with his foreign and war ministers.

Political, military, and press circles, the Madrid reports said, state that Spain cannot be allied with her most direct enemy, Russia.

Foreign Minister Declares Anti-Comintern Pact Disrupted Now

ARTICLE FOUR BROKEN

Tokyo's Soldiers To Be Withdrawn From Area Of Hong Kong

TOKYO, Aug. 25—Japan today virtually bade farewell to her anti-comintern powers, Germany and Italy, and set out to woo the United States and Great Britain.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arima, in a highly significant statement, said:

"Japan must now dispose of the China affair single-handed."

In a placatory vein, he explained: "the important fact about the construction of a 'new order' in East Asia is the elimination of obstruction by third powers against Japanese military rights in China."

"That, however, does not mean the suppression of the legitimate rights of those powers."

To this the foreign office spokesman added that Japan considered that Article IV of the Soviet-German pact violated the anti-comintern agreement. That article provided that neither of the Moscow signatories would associate itself with any bloc of powers directly or indirectly aimed at the other party.

The spokesman denied that Japan had been invited to join the Moscow non-aggression pact for a three-power front against Great Britain.

Instead, he said, Japan was willing to resume the Anglo-Japanese parleys concerning Tientsin and broader questions of China policy when Britain invites Nippon to do so.

The foreign office mouthpiece contributed what seemed a final coffin-nail to Japanese continuation in the anti-comintern front with the announcement that Japanese representatives now would not attend the Nazi congress in Nuremberg Sept. 2.

The Japanese delegation is due in Italy Monday.

HONG KONG, Aug. 25—Japanese troops are about to be withdrawn from the Hong Kong border, it was stated on reliable authority today.

FRANCE MOVING RESIDENTS FROM EASTERN AREAS

Evacuation Of Women And Children Ordered As Two Millions Arm

PARIS FACILITIES TAXED

"Thin Wisp" of Hope For Peace Held Following Roosevelt's Plea

PARIS, Aug. 25 — Widespread evacuation of women and children from eastern France to the comparative safety of Brittany and the interior got under way today as more than 2,000,000 men took their posts at war stations and Premier Edouard Daladier proceeded with plans for creation of a cabinet of national unity.

Those lacking private means of transportation were herded into municipal and prefectural buses and taken to the countryside. Throughout the day, scores of these conveyances rumbled through Paris, carrying their weary and pathetic cargoes from the Meuse valley and other regions blasted by shellfire in the last war.

French nationals returning from Germany were reported halted at the frontier for search and questioning. The stations of Paris were crowded with returning tourists, while there was a continued exodus of Germans, including newspaper correspondents.

Capital Crowded
Mobilization of all able-bodied men meanwhile proceeded to a point where the normal facilities of the capital were handicapped. There were no porters at the Gare Du Nord when the boat train for the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam pulled out. The passengers were compelled to hustle their own baggage.

President Roosevelt's latest moves for peace overshadowed preparedness news in French newspapers. Official circles declined to comment beyond stating that his overtures had created only a "thin wisp" of hope for peace.

Premier Daladier spent the day at the war ministry in conversation with Chief of Staff General Marie Gustave Gamelin. He is scheduled to make a nationwide broadcast this evening, appealing for national unity in the crisis.

Foreign Minister George Bonnet conferred with the ambassadors of Great Britain, Poland and Spain and then reported to the premier. His talk with the Spanish envoy aroused keen speculation, but there was no hint as to its nature.

POLICE CHECKING PAIR WITH PORTABLE RADIOS

Circleville police and the local Cussins & Fearn store were awaiting word from Chillicothe officers Friday on an investigation of four men being held in Batavia with five portable radios in their possession.

Chillicothe officers made a trip to Batavia, Friday, to determine if any of the radios were those stolen from Cussins & Fearn stores in Chillicothe and Circleville on June 22. Two radios were stolen from the Chillicothe store and one from the Circleville store on June 22 by two men.

The men held for investigation were in a car bearing a Kentucky license. At the time of the theft of the radios police were told the men traveled in an old model car with Kentucky license plates.

TWO AUTO AND TRUCK MISHAPS INVESTIGATED

Two accidents in which no one was hurt were investigated Thursday by the sheriff's department.

An auto driven by Frank Karshner, Circleville Route 1, and a truck driven by Milton Henry, E. Franklin street, were involved in a collision at 745 p. m., on Route 56 and 100 feet east of the city corporation line.

A truck owned by A. Jones & Son, Chillicothe, and driven by Ralph Sowers, Springfield Route 1, was damaged when it struck a bridge on Route 674 about three miles north of the intersection of Routes 188 and 674, about 6:30 p. m.

COOK DIVORCE FILED

Suit for divorce, charging neglect of duty and cruelty, was filed in Common Pleas court Thursday by Mrs. Cecil Cook against Harold Cook, Town street. Mrs. Cook asks alimony and that her maiden name of Cecil Ward be restored. A restraining order was granted by Judge Terwilliger preventing Mr. Cook from molesting the plaintiff or disposing of property. A case filed June 26 by Mrs. Cook was dismissed. The couple, the petition says, was married Nov. 25, 1937 in Circleville. There are no children.

ambassador to Warsaw was attempting to induce the Poles to "see reason," while at the same time German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop solidified the new tie-up with Moscow and attempted to adjust relations with Tokyo by bringing Japan into the non-aggression agreement speedily.

On the whole, it remained evident that Hitler is still hoping to achieve a bloodless victory, and remained open to a warless deal with Warsaw on his own terms. These still embrace surrender of Danzig and the Corridor and peaceful adjustment of remaining German-Polish problems.

It was believed in Berlin that Britain had resumed some sort of diplomatic manoeuvres at Warsaw, although their exact nature was not known.

Attention also was called to the fact that Hitler is steadfastly opposed to arbitration by neutral powers, for the simple reason that he is convinced he would never get anywhere that way.

In any case, speed is essential more than ever in the present case, and a solution must come, by the latest, during this weekend:

Classed As Enemy

Since Mr. Roosevelt is classified in Germany as being in the camp of the western enemy, no person or nation of his appointment would be acceptable as a mediator. Competent German quarters' initial reaction was an apparent inclination to regard the latest Roosevelt message as a stunt, interpreted in this way:

1. It is a Rooseveltian domestic political grandstand play.
2. He is acting as a cat's paw for England.
3. He is making himself appear in the role of an apostle of peace "crusading to save world peace in the name of shop-worn democracy."

The situation today, from Berlin's standpoint, is in status quo, thereby giving rise to some slight optimism—although it might be the lull before the storm.

Meanwhile, business life is normal, and the banks are not crowded.

Requisitioning of cars, motorcycles, and trucks continued, with strategic roof-tops and sports facilities studded with manned anti-aircraft guns.

Chancellor Hitler's conferences with his chief advisers, begun at a meeting which broke up at 3 a. m., are being extended today.

British Ships at Sea?

The German admiralty has received a report that units of the British fleet, including an airplane carrier, are cruising up and down in the Skagerrak, between Denmark and Norway. If this is correct, the first English "shadow blockade" already is in effect.

(The report was denied in London by the British admiralty.) That Chancellor Hitler may extend the zero hour for war beyond Sunday was hinted today when the German official news agency, DNB, in describing preparations for Tannenberg Day in East Prussia Sunday, said:

"The meeting will demonstrate to the world that Germany is ready for peace—but also is prepared powerfully to safeguard its right to lebensraum (living space)."

Coup Predicted

On the other hand, continuing the barrage of charges against Poland, DNB reported from Warsaw: "Polish military preparations have assumed an offensive character. Indications are that Poland will start a coup against Danzig in the next few hours."

"The government no longer controls the decisions of the Polish army." Morning brought no German response to the peace appeals sent by President Roosevelt to Hitler and President Ignace Moscicki of Poland, but little attention was paid to Mr. Roosevelt's message to King Victor Emanuel of Italy.

The latter was accepted in Nazi quarters as "floundering in the dark again by a stunt-loving politician."

To Learn Axis' Strong

Germany is not worrying, it was stated, since the President will not achieve anything other than the discovery that the Rome-Berlin axis is stronger than ever.

Nazi quarters said the Rome message should have been addressed to Warsaw and London, "where the real trouble lies."

Similarly, Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement to the House of Commons was described as "negative—designed to veil British responsibility for Polish provocations."

Chancellor Hitler conferred with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the latter having just returned from signing the non-aggression pact in Moscow. Hitler yesterday returned to Berlin from Berchtesgaden. Later other key men joined the conference.

No decisions were announced.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTIONS: I have some old clumps of oriental poppies which I would like to transplant. Is it too late?

ANSWER: This is the ideal time to transplant oriental poppies because they are dormant. Any time before new growth starts will be satisfactory.

QUESTION: The leaves toward the center of my arbutus are turning dark brown so that they look terrible. Is this a sign they are going to die?

ANSWER: You will find that all evergreens have to sooner or later shed their old leaves. The arbutus are shedding their oldest leaves now so that it is a perfectly natural occurrence. There is no need for you to worry.

QUESTION: On our trip east through West Virginia and Pennsylvania we saw a good many rhododendrons. I would like to grow some here would like to know what precautions I must take to insure their living and growing.

ANSWER: Rhododendrons are not difficult to grow in those sections of the state where the soil is naturally acid, but afford more difficulty in the western half of the state, especially where most of the soils are neutral or alkaline. In all parts of Ohio, the rhododendrons will do best if planted on the north or east side of the building or in the shade of trees and shrubs and away from any sweeping winds. It is also advisable to plant them in a soil that is at least half leaf mold or peat moss and to put several inches of rotted leaves or peat moss over the surface as a mulch. Where the soils are not naturally acid, they will have to be acidified by the use of aluminum sulphate, sulphur, or even fresh oak sawdust. It will be impossible to tell you how much of these to use without knowing the reaction of your soil. If you will take a sample of soil to your county agricultural agent he will have it tested for you.

QUESTION: In one of your garden clinics you recommend commercial fertilizer. Do you not think it is much better to use some natural form of fertilizer such as bone-meal or sheep manure?

ANSWER: There is absolutely nothing to the old fashioned theory that only fertilizer from natural sources should be used and that chemicals will not give as good results, since the plants are unable to tell what the source of supply has been. It seems to me that we should buy the least expensive and most satisfactory for. Bone-meal contains nitrogen and phosphorus but no potash. Sheep manure contains all three but in relatively small quantities. I believe you will find that a complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4 is the least expensive form in which to purchase these three necessary elements, nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash.

QUESTION: I would like to plant some shrubs which will have fragrant flowers in my yard this fall. Which ones would you recommend that I use?

ANSWER: Two of the most fragrant of all the shrubs are Viburnum carlesii and Viburnum franseria. Many of the mockoranges, especially the common sweet mockorange, have very fragrant flowers. Most of the lilacs, the common French, Persian, and Chinese lilacs are fragrant. The sweet-shrub or Calycanthus, the flowering currant, and the various honeysuckles, especially the lilac flowered Lonicera sparganthea, are excellent.

QUESTION: In a number of your clinic questions and answers you have recommended myrtle for shaded areas. There has been considerable argument in our club as to what myrtle is. Does it have blue or yellow flowers?

ANSWER: Although I use the term myrtle, it really should be periwinkle, Vinca minor, which has evergreen foliage and blue flowers in the early spring. Many people erroneously call the moneywort or Creeping Charley, Lysimachia nummularia which has yellow flowers myrtle, but this is incorrect.

QUESTION: Is it too late to fertilize my perennial border now?

ANSWER: This is a good time to fertilize a perennial border to stimulate fall growth of your plants and have them in better condition to survive the winter. May I suggest that you ask your county agent for a copy of our bulletin, Perennial Flowers, which

FRANCE MOVING RESIDENTS FROM EASTERN AREAS

Evacuation Of Women And Children Ordered As Two Millions Arm

PARIS FACILITIES TAXED

"Thin Wisp" of Hope For Peace Held Following Roosevelt's Plea

PARIS, Aug. 25 — Widespread evacuation of women and children from eastern France to the comparative safety of Brittany and the interior got under way today as more than 2,000,000 men took their posts at war stations and Premier Edouard Daladier proceeded with plans for creation of a cabinet of national unity.

Those lacking private means of transportation were herded into municipal and prefectural buses and taken to the countryside. Throughout the day, scores of these conveyances rumbled through Paris, carrying their weary and pathetic cargoes from the Meuse valley and other regions blasted by shellfire in the last war.

French nationals returning from Germany were reported halted at the frontier for search and questioning. The stations of Paris were crowded with returning tourists, while there was a continued exodus of Germans, including newspaper correspondents.

Capital Crowded

Mobilization of all able-bodied men meanwhile proceeded to a point where the normal facilities of the capital were handicapped. There were no porters at the Gare Du Nord when the boat train for the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam pulled out. The passengers were compelled to hustle their own baggage.

President Roosevelt's latest moves for peace overshadowed preparedness news in French newspapers. Official circles declined to comment beyond stating that his overtures had created only a "thin wisp" of hope for peace.

Premier Daladier spent the day at the war ministry in conversation with Chief of Staff General Marie Gustave Gamelin. He is scheduled to make a nationwide broadcast this evening, appealing for national unity in the crisis.

Foreign Minister George Bonnet conferred with the ambassadors of Great Britain, Poland and Spain and then reported to the premier. His talk with the Spanish envoy aroused keen speculation, but there was no hint as to its nature.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTIONS: I have some old clumps of oriental poppies which I would like to transplant. Is it too late?

ANSWER: This is the ideal time to transplant oriental poppies because they are dormant. Any time before new growth starts will be satisfactory.

QUESTION: The leaves toward the center of my arborvitae are turning dark brown so that they look terrible. Is this a sign they are going to die?

ANSWER: You will find that all evergreens have to sooner or later shed their old leaves. The arborvitae are shedding their oldest leaves now so that it is a perfectly natural occurrence. There is no need for you to worry.

QUESTION: On our trip east through West Virginia and Pennsylvania we saw a good many rhododendrons. I would like to grow some here would like to know what precautions I must take to insure their living and growing.

ANSWER: Rhododendrons are not difficult to grow in those sections of the state where the soil is naturally acid, but afford more difficulty in the western half of the state, especially where most of the soils are neutral or alkaline. In all parts of Ohio, the rhododendrons will do best if planted on the north or east side of the building or in the shade of trees and shrubs and away from any sweeping winds. It is also advisable to plant them in a soil that is at least half leaf mold or peat moss and to put several inches of rotted leaves or peat moss over the surface as a mulch. Where the soils are not naturally acid, they will have to be acidified by the use of aluminum sulphate, sulphur, or even fresh oak sawdust. It will be impossible to tell you how much of these to use without knowing the reaction of your soil. If you will take a sample of soil to your county agricultural agent he will have it tested for you.

QUESTION: In one of your garden clinics you recommend commercial fertilizer. Do you not think it much better to use some natural form of fertilizer such as bone-meal or sheep manure?

ANSWER: There is absolutely nothing to the old fashioned theory that only fertilizer from natural sources should be used and that chemicals will not give as good results, since the plants are unable to tell what the source of supply has been. It seems to me that we should buy the least expensive and most satisfactory for bone-meal contains nitrogen and phosphorus but no potash. Sheep manure contains all three but in relatively small quantities. I believe you will find that a complete commercial fertilizer with an analysis of 4-12-4 is the least expensive form in which to purchase these three necessary elements, nitrogen, phosphorus, and potash.

QUESTION: I would like to plant some shrubs which will have fragrant flowers in my yard this fall. Which ones would you recommend that I use?

ANSWER: Two of the most fragrant of all the shrubs are Viburnum carlesii and Viburnum fragrans. Many of the mockoranges, especially the common sweet mockorange, have very fragrant flowers. Most of the lilacs, the common, French, Persian, and Chinese lilacs are fragrant. The sweet-shrub or Calycanthus, the flowering currant, and the various honeysuckles, especially the lilac flowered Lonicera syringantha, are excellent.

QUESTION: In a number of your clinic questions and answers you have recommended myrtle for shaded areas. There has been considerable argument in our club as to what myrtle is. Does it have blue or yellow flowers?

ANSWER: Although I use the term myrtle, it really should be periwinkle, Vinca minor, which has evergreen foliage and blue flowers in the early Spring. Many people erroneously call the moneywort or Creeping Charley, Lysimachia nummularia which has yellow flowers myrtle, but this is incorrect.

QUESTION: Is it too late to fertilize my perennial border now?

ANSWER: This is a good time to fertilize a perennial border to stimulate fall growth of your plants and have them in better condition to survive the Winter. May I suggest that you ask your county agent for a copy of our bulletin, Perennial Flowers, which

ASSIGNMENT SCHEDULED

Officials To Appoint New Minister To Succeed
Late Rev. Harper

E. S. Neuding, Main street grocer, has been reelected treasurer of the Southeast Ohio Conference of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ for his 32nd year.

Elections of various conference officials were held at sessions Wednesday and Thursday of the 39th annual meeting of the conference in Mills Memorial United Brethren church, Lancaster.

In addition to serving as treasurer, Mr. Neuding is a member of the board of trustees, the council of administration and a member of the special finance committee.

Other officers reelected are the Rev. W. E. Reibel, of Philo, recording secretary and the Rev. J. R. Bowser, of Oak Hill, statistical secretary. The Rev. H. A. Locke, of Portsmouth, was elected a member of the board of trustees, and the Rev. L. W. Green, of Hamden, secretary of the preachers pension fund. The Revs. Reibel and Green formerly served Circleville and Pickaway county.

Appointment of a new pastor for the Circleville church will be made Friday night by the stationing committee of the conference. The new pastor will succeed the late Rev. T. C. Harper. Leaders for the 11 districts of the conference will be appointed also.

ACTRESS TO WITHDRAW PLEA NAMING ARMY MAN

PARIS, Aug. 25—Because her husband, Capt. John Astley, has been called to active service in the British army, Madeleine Carroll, the film actress, announced today she is dropping her divorce suit. "I'll stick to any man who is fighting for his country," she said as she arrived here from the Riviera. The suit was filed in London.

THREE COUNTY MONROE SCHOOL DAIRYMEN WIN PROGRAM TO BE NATIONAL HONOR ON SEPTEMBER 3

Three Pickaway county dairymen were honored this week by having their names placed on the National Dairy association Honor Roll.

Charles T. Hay, of Ashville, won his award by developing his herd of 27 Guernseys to an average yearly production of 405 pounds of butterfat for the year ending December, 1938.

Robert D. Musser, of Circleville, developed his herd of 19 registered Guernseys to an annual production of 337 pounds of butterfat for the year 1938.

Charles H. Walters, of Circleville township, with his herd of ten registered Ayrshires produced an average of 335 pounds of butterfat for the year ending in December, 1938.

These records were supervised by the Fairfield-Pickaway Dairy Herd Improvement association. The records have been developed only through years of persistent selection and breeding for higher production. These men have done an outstanding job in development and will be presented a diploma signed by Charles L. Hill, president of the National Dairy association.

The Chinaman laughs when told bad news — to fool the evil spirit in whom he believes.

Dedication of the addition to the Monroe township school at Five Points, costing approximately $70,000, has been set for Sunday, Sept. 3.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said the program for the dedication exercises would be announced soon.

The addition includes an auditorium, gymnasium, two classrooms, a domestic science room, science laboratory and commercial room.

THREE COUNTY DAIRYMEN WIN NATIONAL HONOR

Three Pickaway county dairymen were honored this week by having their names placed on the National Dairy association Honor Roll.

Charles T. Hay, of Ashville, won his award by developing his herd of 27 Guernseys to an average yearly production of 405 pounds of butterfat for the year ending December, 1938.

Robert D. Musser, of Circleville, developed his herd of 19 registered Guernseys to an annual production of 337 pounds of butterfat for the year 1938.

Charles H. Walters, of Circleville township, with his herd of ten registered Ayrshires produced an average of 335 pounds of butterfat for the year ending in December, 1938.

These records were supervised by the Fairfield-Pickaway Dairy Herd Improvement association. The records have been developed only through years of persistent selection and breeding for higher production. These men have done an outstanding job in development and will be presented a diploma signed by Charles L. Hill, president of the National Dairy association.

MONROE SCHOOL PROGRAM TO BE ON SEPTEMBER 3

Dedication of the addition to the Monroe township school at Five Points, costing approximately $70,000, has been set for Sunday, Sept. 3.

George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, said the program for the dedication exercises would be announced soon.

The addition includes an auditorium, gymnasium, two classrooms, a domestic science room, science laboratory and commercial room.

OPEN LETTERS

TO MEDICAL SOCIETY

PHYSICIANS: Your organization should take some definite, immediate action to make certain that there is a physician available at all times in Circleville in case of need. It has been brought to my attention that several times in the last few months on Wednesday afternoons no physician has been available when emergencies have arisen. Our physicians are first humanitarians. Their lives have been dedicated to the profession for which they stand. Several Circleville persons have suffered because it has been impossible to reach medical assistance on Wednesday afternoons. Something should be done now.

CIRCUITEER

TO FARM BUREAU, GRANGES

ORGANIZATIONS: Your recent picnic touched a new high in county rural social circles, the fellowship and enjoyment of the day being highlights in the Summer's season. This outing should become an annual affair. It should include all farm organizations, such as the Farm Bureau, the Granges, 4-H clubs and any other units that are dedicated to the service of the community. The attendance of more than 600 persons at this year's undertaking clearly indicates that rural folk are interested in such an affair. The contests were interesting, and rural residents seemed to enjoy the opportunity to get together and meet old friends.

CIRCUITEER

TO SOROSIS CLUB

CIVIC GROUP: You deserve congratulations for plans you are making for the coming year. Contributions to the Church and to schools of the community are always valued. The money that will go to the school for a musical instrument will be appreciated. Your organization has done many fine things in recent years and you deserve the support of the community in all of your undertakings.

CIRCUITEER

TO FAIR VISITORS

VACATIONERS: Too often Circleville and Pickaway county residents who visit the State Fair do not take time to view the exhibits from their own districts. There will be many exhibits of Pickaway county's 4-H club organizations, livestock and other things in the various buildings and barns. Make an effort to locate these exhibits, you will be surprised to see what Pickaway county has to offer in State Fair competition. The horse show, the races and numerous other events are certain to attract your attention, but you owe it to yourselves and to the persons exhibiting to view Pickaway county's own show.

CIRCUITEER

TO SWIMMERS

RESIDENTS: Two Circleville persons have been fatally injured in diving accidents in Scippo creek, one of the deaths occurring this week. These deaths should be a warning to swimmers to use extreme caution in county streams. Swimming in streams is dangerous at any time. Floods in Pickaway county are constantly changing the courses of streams. Places used for swimming holes one year may be gravel bars the next year. Never go swimming in a county stream unless there is some older person, an experienced swimmer, with you. Take no chances on diving. Remember you are constantly in danger of stepping off into deep water in any stream. Pickaway county fishermen who wade the various streams are well acquainted with the changing beds. If you like to swim go to a pool where you are guarded and know you will be safe.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: The improvement of Poplar alley, the first alley east of Court street between Main and Franklin streets, is certainly pleasing to city residents. That alley has been a "pain" for too many years. After every heavy rain the alley was flooded. The result was deep holes caused by heavy traffic on the thoroughfare. The service department is to be complimented on the splendid work it has done in paving some of the downtown alleys with old bricks from the Court street repaving program. It is hoped council can work out arrangements to pave more downtown alleys with brick. Some of the downtown alleys carry more traffic than some city streets.

CIRCUITEER

TO FATHERS AND MOTHERS

PARENTS: Schools in Circleville and Pickaway county will soon be opening. Now is the time to take your youngsters to your family physician and dentist for a health check. Your children may need glasses. This is the time to have their eyes examined and any defects corrected. Frequently health authorities find some physical defect the cause of a child failing to keep up in classwork.

CIRCUITEER

TO POMONA GRANGERS

FOLK: I am pleased to read that you have embarked on plans for a float to be entered in the annual Pumpkin Show celebration. I hope that other organizations will take a tip from your unit to get to work on plans for the show. You should remember that the Pumpkin Show dates, Oct. 18, 19, 20 and 21, are not so far distant.

World At A Glance

..... —By—
Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR BURTON WHEELER of Montana is a peculiar individual to be mentioned as a possible liberal-conservative compromise for the Democrats' 1940 presidential nomination. In his time Wheeler has been a liberal, if ever there was one. In fact, he generally was classed as ultra-radical. At least he was enough of a leftist to run vice presidentially on the elder Senator Robert M. La Follette's Progressive ticket in 1924. With a record like that one wouldn't think that present-day conservatives would be inclined to accept him as a candidatorial compromise, from their standpoint.

Nevertheless, not the most unqualified stand-patter in congress has harpooned certain New Deal policies as effectively as Burton C. has. Would this seem calculated to make him an acceptable compromise from the supposedly very liberal New Dealers' angle?

All the same, Wheeler's suggested as a compromise.

WHAT IS HE?

My own estimate of the Montana statesman is that he's an honest-to-goodness democrat (with a small "d") and a democrat of a pretty violent type, too. He certainly was far too leftward to suit the Bourbon Democrats (big "D") 15 years ago, though undoubtedly they're appreciative of the trouble he's made for New Dealers more recently.

What Burton C. evidently doesn't like in the New Deal is what he considers its tendency toward Nazi-ism or Fascism, and if Hitler and Mussolini are radicals they're the opposite kind of radicals from his kind; his kind is in the direction of all colors of personal liberty.

In short, as he sees it, we have a rectangular situation.

Democrats (big "D"), democrats (little "d"), Republicans, and New Dealers, who, in his judgment, are on the way toward what nowadays we call "totalitarianism."

Wheeler super-emphatically is a democrat (little "d").

I wouldn't suppose that anybody but democrats (little "d") could compromise on him. The Democrats (big "D") and the Republicans probably are quite grateful to him for the heck he's raised with the New Deal, but that they'd endorse him as their standard bearer strikes me as altogether unlikely. And that the New Dealers would acquiesce! It's ridiculous.

They might compromise on young Senator La Follette or Senator Norris (if he weren't so old). But Wheeler's as anti-New Deal as Senator Hale of Maine or Senator Glass of Virginia.

SUPREME COURT FIGHT

Senator Wheeler began to be talked about compromising on account of concurring remarks of his own and of President Roosevelt's relative to the outcome of the federal supreme court reorganization contest.

Earlier in his term, as we know, the president was bothered by the conservative court's hostile attitude as to his New Deal plans. Accordingly, he proposed to increase the number of justices, to enable him to appoint enough new ones to outvote the conservatives. This was described as a scheme to "pack" the court, subordinating it to the White House. Wheeler led the campaign to prevent it. He did a dandy job and won. Moreover, it was a conspicuous job, because Wheeler had so long been regarded as an enemy of supreme court conservatism.

For all that, the supreme court's been somewhat New Dealized.

Several retirements enabled the president to name new justices to his liking. A few of the remaining bunch unquestionably were scared into turning more liberal. Today it's a fairly New Dealerish tribunal.

LOST A BATTLE BUT—

The other day it appears to have occurred to President Roosevelt that he'd won a supreme court victory—he'd lost a battle but won a war.

"That's true enough," conceded Senator Wheeler.

That admission (which can't be disputed) evidently has been interpreted in various quarters as having qualified Wheeler as a Democratic-democratic-Republican-New Deal-liberal-radical-conservative-reactionary compromise presidential candidate.

Will it work?

"Now do you see what I mean?"

DIET AND HEALTH

Controlling Whooping Cough

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHOOPING cough has gradually moved up in importance as a danger to children. This is not because it is more frequent or serious than it used to be, but because those childhood plagues of other days have been divested of their horrors. Diphtheria formerly had a death rate three times that of whooping cough. For the 1931-1935 period in the United States, that ratio was almost reversed, whooping cough claiming three deaths for every two from diphtheria.

Parents frequently give voice to the plaint that there are so many vaccinations to be given that the baby's early years are quite taken up with these troublesome procedures. But, in the first place, they are not so very troublesome to the baby and certainly not harmful. I only wish there were half a dozen more methods of vaccination I could recommend—a preventive inoculation for measles, rheumatic fever, infantile paralysis, mumps. I wish I could more wholeheartedly recommend the vaccine against scarlet fever.

Vaccine Used

Prevention of whooping cough has been attempted by the use of a vaccine. The vaccine is made from the Bordet-Gengon bacillus, which is quite generally accepted as the cause of whooping cough. In 1933 Dr. Louis W. Sauer, of Evanston, Illinois, reported on the use of a vaccine of this sort. He has continuously worked with it ever since, improving it by various methods. There is now available a vaccine made with an organism named Hemophilus pertussis, which is claimed to produce considerable immunity. With this improvement also comes the provision that the vaccine can be given in very small volume for active immunization. Three injections, a week apart, are given. No harmful results have been reported from its use.

As an example of results, the record of the Whooping Cough Control Clinic at Evanston, Dr. Sauer's own home, may be cited. Every six months since 1934 children (average age, nine months) have been vaccinated against whooping cough. In all, 1,377 children have been so vaccinated. In that group 10 children have contracted whooping cough. In a control group of 1,100 children, living under the same conditions, but who were not vaccinated, 120 cases of whooping cough developed.

High Incidence

In a control experiment over an entire city, 1,730 unvaccinated children developed 286 cases of whooping cough; 2,453 vaccinated children developed 32 cases.

A striking instance occurred in a family where two twins furnished a perfect control experiment. They were exposed to the same contacts and environment, and, being twins, we may assume that they had the same constitution. One was vaccinated against whooping cough while the other remained unvaccinated. During the school year they were exposed to an epidemic in school, and the unvaccinated one contracted the disease, whereas the vaccinated one, though exposed intimately to his brother's infection, remained free.

In conclusion, it may be said that if any parent wishes to try the whooping cough vaccine, he should be encouraged, but it is not yet so well proven that its use should be enforced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. F.: "Is there any way to get insulin into a diabetic person except by injection?"
Answer: No.

M. D. D.: "Can anything be done to counteract cataract of the eye in the early stages of the disease?"
Answer—Cataract cannot be cured by medicines, if that is what you mean. Oculists usually let cataracts in the early stages ripen, and then remove them surgically.

B. B.: "What can you do for feet that perspire excessively? I notice they put medicated soles into the shoes and wonder if they would help."

Answer—Soak the feet night and morning in a bath made up of a teaspoonful of formalin to two quarts of water. Medicated soles do help. Wear woolen stockings.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained free. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

WHEN LORENA was about half a mile from the ranch house, she told herself she was a fool. She had already had one experience riding around alone. In broad daylight, she had been kidnapped, so anything could happen at night.

Or could it? Wouldn't it, she asked herself, be actually safer to ride alone at night rather than in daylight? For one thing, she would not be caught napping again. Even now she held her rifle in front of her as she rode. She could touch a safety button, swing the muzzle and shoot in not more than one second. And then shoot again and again. She loved to handle a rifle. Its quiet deadliness gave her a sense of security now.

She had never been to the eastern edge of the Phantom range, but she had heard the men discuss it so much that she felt she could find the way, and she wanted to get there before dawn to avoid being seen. She knew it was in rugged country and that the pasturage referred to was about six miles away. She just had to guess at the place by estimating distance.

She wisely gave her horse freedom in picking its trail in the night, and so he made good footings. When she came to one deepening arroyo with some water still lingering there from the recent rains, and found a number of cattle in it, she knew she was on the right trail.

Uncle George and Shot had mentioned this arroyo as the spot where Apache Indians had massacred a party of placer gold miners in 1881. It was one of the historical incidents that added credence nowadays to the Ghost river legends, made the Phantom ranch both fascinating and fearsome.

"Uncle George said you could still see the remains of the miners' old rock cabins," she told herself, riding. "I'd like to come and visit the place in daytime."

In spite of herself, she was a little frightened now, purely from imagination. Miners' arroyo, she knew, was just like any of perhaps hundreds of others in Arizona, but this one at least had cause to be haunted. She tried to smile away her fears, and did reason herself out of most of them. But in spite of the stars' intrusive brilliance the arroyo seemed extremely dark. She couldn't tell exactly in what direction she was going, but she kept her horse pressing on. She had a plan. She wasn't going to change it.

"Ho-o-o-o!"

Shot Rogers lifted his hand and spoke at the same time—signaling the 10 men with him to stop. When they had gathered near, he answered their unspoken queries.

"Fellows," he began. "I have to tell you now that we are going in the wrong direction. As you know, we started toward the Hump and told everybody that. But the truth is, we are going to the east range."

"How come?" somebody asked. "Yeah!" put in another. "I thought we talked all about coming over here and—"

"That's just it," Shot resumed. "We talked it. We talked it on purpose. You see, men, there was some cause to suspect maybe Escobar had spies among the people at the ranch, so we are trying to mislead them. We said we were aiming for the Hump today, and we started off in this direction, so if there was a spy got onto it he would immediately send that word to Escobar. But the east range has more cows and better cows, so Escobar probably will see this as his chance to make a fat raid there. See?"

"Whew!" breathed one of the men. "We better cut back, then." "Right."

Shot led them in an abrupt turn that pointed the column of horsemen toward Crown mountain.

"We'll have to push right along because of the added distance," he spoke above the rumble of hoofs. "And remember it won't do no—won't do any harm to keep our eyes peeled even along here. We'll cut across the Blanco road in a little bit, and it was there that Miss Lorena got caught by two of Escobar's men, remember. So he's got spotters around these hills everywhere."

They rode at a slow gallop where possible and at a fast walk when they had to slow down. Their horses all were good ones, trained to the rugged lands there, adept at picking footholds in rock, grass, or sand. They dismounted once and led their mounts up an extremely steep incline, then down a similar one on the other side of a jagged rock ridge. The maneuver took nearly a half hour, but it saved two hours of riding to go around a longer way. Recent rains had left abundant water holes for the horses to refresh themselves in, and the men themselves stopped at seven that morning when they came to one clear pool in the rock.

"Might as well tank up," Shot suggested.

He set the example by removing his felt hat, cupping the broad brim deftly in one hand and dipping out a half pint or so, squatting on his hunkers to do it. Without a word the other 10 men did likewise. One or two dashed some water over their faces just to feel the zestful cool of it.

"Keep your rifles ready and come one," Shot murmured, ominously. "Don't take no chances, men. Remember, they got four of us already. If you see anybody, shoot first and then ask questions."

2. Are more children born at hospitals or at home?
3. What is a recidivist?

Words of Wisdom

Experience has convinced me that there is a thousand times more goodness, wisdom and love in the world than men imagine. —Gehles.

Hints on Etiquette

Repetitions of "you know," or "you know what I mean," and other similar remarks throughout your conversation grow monotonous to your listeners, so if you have this habit commence to break yourself of it.

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today you will prosper in business during the coming year and win promotion. Protect the health of the women of your family, however. The child born on this date will have a strong sense of justice and devotion to duty, and is therefore fitted to hold responsible positions. Aside from these admirable qualities the child will be practical, cautious and rather over-exacting.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Because scraping leaves a multitude of small, irregular surfaces which reflect the light in all directions, giving the white appearance.
2. Many more are born at home.
3. A confirmed criminal.

The school will be one of 37 in the state.

The Edward C. Denbow property on Town street was sold to J. J. Shaeffer.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, August 25

MODERATELY malefic aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day make it difficult to presage the nature of the issues. The signs indicate that success and good fortune and happiness are to be captured by sound methods, good judgment, merit and by winning the support of those in influential positions. The latter may not be impressed without shrewd effort or tactful manipulation. A change of plans might best assist such maneuvering.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which success and fortune are to be won by individual effort. It may take cleverness in developing plans, diplomacy in securing endorsement from those in power, and strategy in manipulating sudden opportunities that arise. Progress, prosperity and personal happiness depend upon fortuitous grasp of circumstances.

A child born on this day may achieve success and fair fortune in life by its own cleverness, practicality, worthy ambition and personal good graces, wrested from rather dubious conditions and circumstances.

"From now on," Shot said then, "let's scatter out. Instead of riding along single or double file, we'll spread over as wide a territory as convenient. Stay up to 50 yards apart, and take in more ground with our eyes. We might pick up a sign of some kind or see somebody."

"There's something dead over yonder a half mile," one man remarked. "Look at them buzzards a-hoverin'."

"We'll cut by there," Shot decided. In ten minutes they were approaching the place, Shot leading. He raised his hand in signal again that they were to stop, but they all edged up to the form they saw on the ground ahead of them.

"Good gosh, he's been dead long enough!" one rider said, referring to the unmistakable odor. All of them now recognized the remains of what had been a man.

"Not much left but bones," Shot murmured, soberly, not even dismounting. With the others he shifted his horse around to windward. "But those pieces of clothes—ain't that his hat over yonder? They show it was a Mexican."

"I'd guess it was one you and George and Jasper got on Wednesday night," somebody suggested. "Wounded and made it this far, maybe. Judging by the looks and smell."

Shot nodded. "Well, there's nothing we can do for him now. Nature has its way."

They rode on; but the experience had cast a definite sense of seriousness over the men, some of whom had been prone toward levity this morning. They all realized anew that they had stern business at hand.

"This draw leads into Miners' arroyo," Shot stated presently, guiding his horse toward the nearest man and motioning the others to close in. "We'll have to stick close together to ride up it."

They rode in silence for several minutes. Shot had dropped back into third place of the single-file column. All at once, though, the lead man stopped.

"Hey, Shot!" he called, not too loudly. "Look a-her! There's been a rider along here this morning. Here's horse tracks!"

They examined the tracks minutely. They were leading eastward also, and weren't but a few hours old.

"Keep your rifles ready and come one," Shot murmured, ominously. "Don't take no chances, men. Remember, they got four of us already. If you see anybody, shoot first and then ask questions."

OPEN LETTERS

TO MEDICAL SOCIETY

PHYSICIANS: Your organization should take some definite, immediate action to make certain that there is a physician available at all times in Circleville in case of need. It has been brought to my attention that several times in the last few months on Wednesday afternoons no physician has been available when emergencies have arisen. Our physicians are first humanitarians. Their lives have been dedicated to the profession for which they stand. Several Circleville persons have suffered because it has been impossible to reach medical assistance on Wednesday afternoons. Something should be done now.

CIRCUITEER

TO FARM BUREAU, GRANGES

ORGANIZATIONS: Your recent picnic touched a new high in county rural social circles, the fellowship and enjoyment of the day being highlights in the Summer's season. This outing should become an annual affair. It should include all farm organizations, such as the Farm Bureau, the Granges, 4-H clubs and any other units that are dedicated to the service of the community. The attendance of more than 600 persons at this year's undertaking clearly indicates that rural folk are interested in such an affair. The contests were interesting, and rural residents seemed to enjoy the opportunity to get together and meet old friends.

CIRCUITEER

TO SOROSIS CLUB

CIVIC GROUP: You deserve congratulations for plans you are making for the coming year. Contributions to the Church and to schools of the community are always valued. The money that will go to the school for a musical instrument will be appreciated. Your organization has done many fine things in recent years and you deserve the support of the community in all of your undertakings.

CIRCUITEER

TO FAIR VISITORS

VACATIONERS: Too often Circleville and Pickaway county residents who visit the State Fair do not take time to view the exhibits from their own districts. There will be many exhibits of Pickaway county's 4-H club organizations, livestock and other things in the various buildings and barns. Make an effort to locate these exhibits, you will be surprised to see what Pickaway county has to offer in State Fair competition. The horse show, the races and numerous other events are certain to attract your attention, but you owe it to yourselves and to the persons exhibiting to view Pickaway county's own show.

CIRCUITEER

TO SWIMMERS

RESIDENTS: Two Circleville persons have been fatally injured in diving accidents in Scippo creek, one of the deaths occurring this week. These deaths should be a warning to swimmers to use extreme caution in county streams. Swimming in streams is dangerous at any time. Floods in Pickaway county are constantly changing the courses of streams. Places used for swimming holes one year may be gravel bars the next year. Never go swimming in a county stream unless there is some older person, an experienced swimmer, with you. Take no chances on diving. Remember you are constantly in danger of stepping off into deep water in any stream. Pickaway county fishermen who wade the various streams are well acquainted with the changing beds. If you like to swim go to a pool where you are guarded and know you will be safe.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: The improvement of Poplar alley, the first alley east of Court street between Main and Franklin streets, is certainly pleasing to city residents. That alley has been a "pain" for too many years. After every heavy rain the alley was flooded. The result was deep holes caused by heavy traffic on the thoroughfare. The service department is to be complimented on the splendid work it has done in paving some of the downtown alleys with old bricks from the Court street repaving program. It is hoped council can work out arrangements to pave more downtown alleys with brick. Some of the downtown alleys carry more traffic than some city streets.

CIRCUITEER

TO FATHERS AND MOTHERS

PARENTS: Schools in Circleville and Pickaway county will soon be opening. Now is the time to take your youngsters to your family physician and dentist for a health check. Your children may need glasses. This is the time to have their eyes examined and any defects corrected. Frequently health authorities find some physical defect the cause of a child failing to keep up in classwork.

CIRCUITEER

TO POMONA GRANGERS

FOLK: I am pleased to read that you have embarked on plans for a float to be entered in the annual Pumpkin Show celebration. I hope that other organizations will take a tip from your unit to get to work on plans for the show. You should remember that the Pumpkin Show dates, Oct. 18, 19, 20 and 21, are not so far distant.

World At A Glance

SENATOR BURTON WHEELER of Montana is a peculiar individual to be mentioned as a possible liberal-conservative compromise for the Democrats' 1940 presidential nomination.

In his time Wheeler has been a liberal, if ever there was one. In fact, he generally was classed as ultra-radical. At least he was enough of a leftist to run vice presidentially on the elder Senator Robert M. La Follette's Progressive ticket in 1924. With a record like that one wouldn't think that present-day conservatives would be inclined to accept him as a candidate for compromise, from their standpoint.

Nevertheless, not the most unqualified stand-patter in congress has harpooned certain New Deal policies as effectively as Burton K. has. Would this seem calculated to make him an acceptable compromise from the supposedly very liberal New Dealers' angle?

All the same, Wheeler's suggested as a compromise.

WHAT IS HE?

My own estimate of the Montana statesman is that he's an honest-to-goodness democrat (with a small "d") and a democrat of a pretty violent type, too. He certainly was far too leftward to suit the Bourbon Democrats (big "D") 15 years ago, though undoubtedly they're appreciative of the trouble he's made for New Dealerism more recently.

What Burton K. evidently doesn't like in the New Deal is what he considers its tendency toward Naziism or Fascism, and if Hitler and Mussolini are radicals they're the opposite kind of radicals from his kind; his kind is in the direction of all colors of personal liberty.

In short, as he sees it, we have a rectangular situation. Democrats (big "D"), democrats (little "d"), Republicans, and New Dealers, who, in his judgment, are on the way toward what nowadays we call "totalitarianism."

Wheeler super-emphatically is a democrat (little "d"). I wouldn't suppose that anybody but democrats (little "d") could compromise on him. The democrats (big "D") and the Republicans probably are quite grateful to him for the heck he's raised with the New Deal, but that they'd endorse him as their standard bearer strikes me as altogether unlikely. And that the New Dealers would acquiesce! It's ridiculous. They might compromise on young Senator La Follette or Senator Norris (if he weren't so old). But Wheeler's as anti-New Deal as Senator Hale of Maine or Senator Glass of Virginia.

SUPREME COURT FIGHT

Senator Wheeler began to be talked about compromising on account of concurring remarks of his own and of President Roosevelt's relative to the outcome of the federal supreme court reorganization contest.

Earlier in his term, as we know, the president was bothered by the conservative court's hostile attitude as to his New Deal plans. Accordingly, he proposed to increase the number of justices, to enable him to appoint enough new ones to outvote the conservatives. This was described as a scheme to "pack" the court, subordinating it to the White House. Wheeler led the campaign to prevent it. He did a dandy job and won. Moreover, it was a conspicuous job, because Wheeler had so long been regarded as an enemy of supreme court conservatism.

For all that, the supreme court's been somewhat New Dealized. Several retirements enabled the president to name new justices to his liking. A few of the remaining bunch unquestionably were scared into turning more liberal. Today it's a fairly New Dealerish tribunal.

LOST A BATTLE BUT—

The other day it appears to have occurred to President Roosevelt that he'd won a supreme court victory—he'd lost a battle but won a war.

"That's true enough," conceded Senator Wheeler. That admission (which can't be disputed) evidently has been interpreted in various quarters as having qualified Wheeler as a Democratic-democratic-Republican-New Deal-liberal-radical-conservative-reactionary compromise presidential candidate.

Will it work?

Controlling Whooping Cough

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHOOPING COUGH has gradually moved up in importance as a danger to children. This is not because it is more frequent or serious than it used to be, but because those childhood plagues of other days have been divested of their horrors. Diphtheria formerly had a death rate three times that of whooping cough. For the 1931-1935 period in the United States, that ratio was almost reversed, whooping cough claiming three deaths for every two from diphtheria.

Parents frequently give voice to the plaint that there are so many vaccinations to be given that the baby's early years are quite taken up with these troublesome procedures. But, in the first place, they are not so very troublesome to the baby and certainly not harmful. I only wish there were half a dozen more methods of vaccination I could recommend—a preventive inoculation for measles, rheumatic fever, infantile paralysis, mumps. I wish I could more wholeheartedly recommend the vaccine against scarlet fever.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Vaccine Used

Prevention of whooping cough has been attempted by the use of a vaccine. The vaccine is made from the Bordet-Gengon bacillus, which is quite generally accepted as the cause of whooping cough.

In 1933 Dr. Louis W. Sauer, of Evanston, Illinois, reported on the use of a vaccine of this sort. He has continuously worked with it ever since, improving it by various methods. There is now available a vaccine made with an organism named Hemophilus pertussis, which is claimed to produce considerable immunity. With this improvement also comes the provision that the vaccine can be given in very small volume for active immunization. Three injections, a week apart, are given. No harmful results have been reported from its use.

As an example of results, the record of the Whooping Cough Control Clinic at Evanston, Dr. Sauer's own home, may be cited. Every six months since 1934 children (average age, nine months) have been vaccinated against whooping cough. In all, 1,377 children have been so vaccinated. In that group 10 children have contracted whooping cough. In a control group of 1,100 children, living under the same conditions, but who were not vaccinated, 120 cases of whooping cough developed.

High Incidence

In a control experiment over an entire city, 1,730 unvaccinated children developed 286 cases of whooping cough; 2,453 vaccinated children developed 32 cases.

One striking incident occurred in a family where two twins furnished a perfect control experiment. They were exposed to the same contacts and environment, and, being twins, we may assume that they had the same constitution. One was vaccinated against whooping cough while the other remained unvaccinated.

During the school year they were exposed to an epidemic in school, and the unvaccinated one contracted the disease, whereas the vaccinated one, though exposed intimately to his brother's infection, remained free.

In conclusion, it may be said that if any parent wishes to try the whooping cough vaccine, he should be encouraged, but it is not yet so well proven that its use should be enforced.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. F.: "Is there any way to get insulin into a diabetic person except by injection?"
Answer: No.

M. D. D.: "Can anything be done to counteract cataract of the eye in the early stages of the disease?"

Answer—Cataract cannot be cured by medicines, if that is what you mean. Oculists usually let cataracts in the early stages ripen, and then remove them surgically.

B. B.: "What can you do for feet that perspire excessively? I notice they put medicated soles into the shoes, and wonder if they would help."
Answer—Soak the feet night and morning in a bath made up of a teaspoonful of formalin to two quarts of water. Medicated soles do help. Wear woolen stockings.

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

WHEN LORENA was about half a mile from the ranch house, she told herself she was a fool. She had already had one experience riding around alone. In broad daylight, she had been kidnapped, so anything could happen at night.

Or could it? Wouldn't it, she asked herself, be actually safer to ride alone at night rather than in daylight? For one of the things she would be caught napping again. Even now she held her rifle in front of her as she rode. She could touch a safety button, swing the muzzle and shoot in not more than one second. And then shoot again and again. She loved to handle a rifle. Its quiet deadliness gave her a sense of security now.

She had never been to the eastern edge of the Phantom range, but she had heard the men discuss it so much that she felt she could find the way, and she wanted to get there before dawn to avoid being seen. She knew it was in rugged country and that the pasturage referred to was about six miles away. She just had to guess at the place by estimating distance.

She wisely gave her horse freedom in picking its trail in the night, and so she made good footings. When she came to one deepening arroyo with some water still lingering there from the recent rains, and found a number of cattle in it, she knew she was on the right trail.

Uncle George and Shot had mentioned this arroyo as the spot where Apache Indians had massacred a party of placer gold miners in 1881. It was one of the historical incidents that added credence nowadays to the Ghost river legends, made the Phantom ranch both fascinating and fearsome.

"Uncle George said you could still see the remains of the miners' old rock cabins," she told herself, riding. "I'd like to come and visit the place in daytime."

In spite of herself, she was a little frightened now, purely from imagination. Miners' arroyo, she knew, was just like any of perhaps hundreds of others in Arizona, but this one at least had cause to be haunted. She tried to smile away her fears, and did reason herself out of most of them. But in spite of the stars' intrusive brilliance the arroyo seemed extremely dark. She couldn't tell exactly in what direction she was going, but she kept her horse pressing on. She had a plan. She wasn't going to change it.

"Ho-o-o!" Shot Rogers lifted his hand and spoke at the same time—signaling the 10 men with him to stop. When they had gathered near, he answered their unspoken queries.

"Fellows," he began. "I have to tell you now that we are going in the wrong direction. As you know, we started toward the Hump and told everybody that. But the truth is, we are going to the east range."

"How come?" somebody asked.

"Yeah!" put in another. "I thought we talked all about coming over here and—"

"That's just it," Shot resumed. "We talked it. We talked it on purpose. You see, men, there was some cause to suspect maybe Escobar had spies among the people at the ranch, so we are trying to mislead them. We said we were aiming for the Hump today, and we started off in this direction, so if there was a spy got onto it he would immediately send that word to Escobar. But the east range has more cows and better cows, so Escobar probably will see this as his chance to make a fat raid there. See?"

"Whew!" breathed one of the men. "We better cut back, then."

"Right."

Shot led them in an abrupt turn that pointed the column of horsemen toward Crown mountain.

"We'll have to push right along because of the added distance," he spoke above the rumble of hoofs. "And remember it won't do now—won't do any harm to keep our eyes peeled even along here. We'll cut across the Blanco road in a little bit, and it was there that Miss Lorena got caught by two of Escobar's men, remember. So he's got spotters around these hills everywhere."

They rode at a slow gallop where possible and at a fast walk when they had to slow down. Their horses all were good ones, trained at picking footholds in rock, grass or sand. They dismounted once and led their mounts up an extremely steep incline, then down to a similar one on the other side of a jagged rock ridge.

The maneuver took nearly a half hour, but it saved two hours of riding to go around a longer way. Recent rains had left abundant water holes for the horses to refresh themselves in, and the men themselves stopped at seven that morning when they came to one clear pool in the rock.

"Might as well tank up," Shot suggested.

He set the example by removing his felt hat, cupping the broad brim deftly in one hand and dipping out a half pint or so, squatting on his hunkers to do it. Without a word the other 10 men did likewise. One or two dashed some water on their faces just to feel the zestful cool of it.

"From now on," Shot said then, "let's scatter out. Instead of riding along single or double file, we'll spread over as wide a territory as convenient, say up to 50 yards apart, and take in more ground with our eyes. We might pick up a sign of some kind or see somebody."

"There's something dead over yonder a half mile," one man remarked. "Look at them buzzards a-hoverin'."

Hints on Etiquette

Repetitions of "you know" or "you know what I mean," and other similar remarks throughout your conversation grow monotonous to your listeners, so if you have this habit commence to break yourself of it.

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today you will prosper in business during the coming year and win promotion. Protect the health of the women of your family, however. The child born on this date will have a strong sense of justice and devotion to duty, and is therefore fitted to hold responsible positions. Aside from these admirable qualities the child will be practical, cautious and rather over-exacting.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Because scraping leaves a multitude of small, irregular surfaces which reflect the light in all directions, giving the white appearance.
2. Many more are born at home.
3. A confirmed criminal.

Guests at the informal supper were Miss Teegardin, Mr. Kiger, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Duvall, Paul Warner Teegardin, the Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McVey, Miss Helen Yates, Forrest A. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Teegardin, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight E. Teegardin and

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn C. Teegardin.

Farewell Picnic

Mrs. Margaret Hinton, daughter, Leora, and grandson, Buddy, of Chillicothe were honor guests at a farewell picnic supper Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ater, near Williamsport. In the early evening, the guests gathered on the lawn where they enjoyed a social hour. Mrs. Hinton and Buddy will leave Saturday for Syracuse, N. Y., where they will make their home with her son, Lawrence. Miss Hinton will join them in about a month.

Others enjoying the delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hissey; Mr. and Mrs. Dudley McDill and sons, Marvin, Carl and Donald Lee, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Weller and children, Maynard, Donagene and Joan of near Williamsport.

Mrs. Hinton returned to Clarksville after visiting a few days at the Ater home, and will remain in that community until Saturday.

Mrs. Lewis Honored

Mrs. Stanley Lewis of Guthrie, Okla., was honored at a cooperative dinner and informal party Thursday when members of the Westminster Bible class of the Presbyterian church gathered in the social room. Mrs. Lewis is a former president of the class. Mrs. James Cheek of Oklahoma City, Okla., who came to Circleville with Mrs. Lewis and her children to visit her sister, Mrs. George Littleton, of S. Pickaway street, was also complimented at the affair.

A large vase of vari-colored gladioli centered the long table where more than 30 class members and guests were served at 6:30 p. m.

At the close of the dinner hour, Mrs. Orin W. Dreisbach gave an informal toast to Mrs. Lewis who was presented a shower of handkerchiefs by the class members.

Mrs. Clark received a bouquet of roses.

During the informal evening, Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Cheek both spoke informally of their homes in Oklahoma, and gave many interesting details concerning the state.

Mrs. Glen S. Nickerson, class president, announced that the first meeting of the Fall would be Sept. 5, at the home of Mrs. Walter Downing, Wayne township, when Leslie Pontius would give an illustrated lecture.

The assisting hostesses will include Mrs. Earl Wolfe, Mrs. Smith Hulse, Mrs. Beryl Stevenson and Mrs. Theodore Huston.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Dyer and daughter, Jane, of Pickaway township and niece, Marjorie Kuhn, of Circleville visited Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rarrick of Thornville.

GARDEN-GRAPH

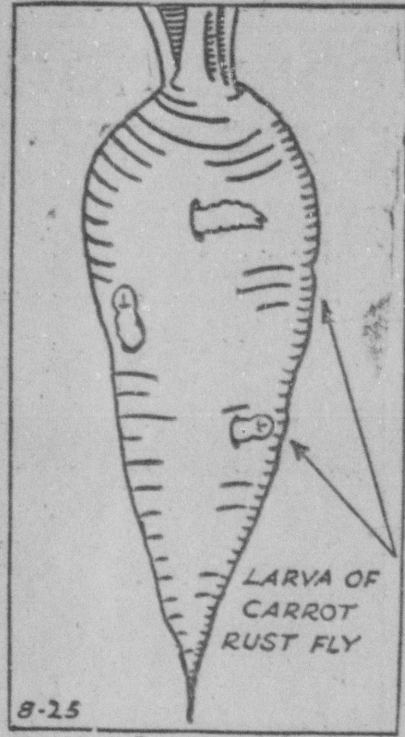

Carrot Rust Fly

If you notice that the carrot foliage in your garden is wilting and dying off you may be certain that the damage is caused by the carrot rust fly. These flies which are quite small, have dark greenish bodies, yellow heads and red eyes.

The carrot fly lays its eggs on the collar of the young carrot. These eggs hatch and produce legless yellow larvae which in turn enter the skin of the carrot as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. As the larvae tunnel into the carrot, rusty-looking patches are left.

When the larvae of the carrot fly is full grown it enters a fly. There are two broods of carrot flies a year, one in June and another late September.

One method of control is to sprinkle crude naphthalene between the rows of carrots. Another method is to soak the seedling plants and the soil around them with corrosive sublimate (one ounce to ten gallons of water.) Soak the soil thoroughly for all of two inches on each side of the row.

Deercreek Garden Club Names Mrs. J. B. Johnson

Members Gather In Parish House For Annual Ballot

Mrs. J. B. Johnson was reelected president, Mrs. Fred Tipton vice president, Mrs. W. D. Heskell secretary, and Mrs. C. W. Hayes treasurer, Thursday evening, when the Deercreek Garden Club of Williamsport met in the parish house. Twenty members were present for the August session.

Mrs. Johnson presided during the business hour and received the report of the nominating committee including Mrs. Lee Luellen, Mrs. Carl Hurst and Miss Lena Schein. In the absence of Mrs. Heskell, the secretary's report was read by Mrs. Katie West. Mrs. Johnson read the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Hayes, who was unable to be present. Dues were paid by the members at this session.

The club donated $15 to the Williamsport schools to help purchase an instrument for the Little German Band.

Mrs. Howard Nessell was program leader for the evening and used for her subject "Planning Next Spring's Bulb Garden". She talked about the different bulbs to be planted for blooming in early Spring and during the Summer.

Mrs. Adrian McVey read a paper on "Lilies".

During the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. Charles Smiley, Mrs. Earl Trego, Mrs. M. D. Gamble and Miss Lena Schein. The table was centered with a basket of beautiful ageratum and Lady-of-the-Lake.

The time and place of the next session will be announced later.

Guests at Shell Beach

Mrs. Edwin Rausenberger of Shell Beach, Buckeye Lake, is entertaining this week at her cottage Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Scheibeck, Mr. and Mrs. Robert White, Mr. and Mrs. Trent Sikes and daughter, Madilyn, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Vincent Holmes of Columbus and Mrs. Emma Abey of Cincinnati. Mrs. Rausenberger will accompany her guests during the weekend to Portage Lake, where they will attend the Sportsmen's Summer Convention.

Last Summer Dance

The last dance of the Summer season of the Pickaway Country club will be Saturday Sept. 2, when the entire facilities of the club will be reserved for the pleasure of the dancers.

Ernie McKay and his eight piece dance band, assisted by a girl vocalist, will be present, and will play up-to-the-minute dance tunes from 10 until 1 o'clock. His delightfully smooth type of performance has been greatly enjoyed at previous affairs.

With many guests in the city for the Labor Day holiday, this final dance in the Old Barn promises to be the best attended of the four arranged during the Summer by Miss Katherine Foreman, Miss Charlotte Moore, William Crist and John Mader, members of this year's dance committee.

Returns to West Point

Cadet Jacob Towers, son of Dr. and Mrs. O. J. Towers, E. Union street, left Friday morning for West Point, N. Y., where he will resume his duties Sept. 1 at the United States Military Academy. Cadet Towers will be a second classman this year. His next vacation in Circleville will be during the Christmas holidays.

The Towers family recently returned after a travel vacation during which they visited Niagara

EX-BUCKEYE TO DIRECT SPORTS AT OTTERBEIN

WESTERVILLE, Aug. 25—Sam Selby, new Otterbein coach and former Ohio State star, will be athletic director in addition to head coach, it was announced today by Otterbein President Dr. J. R. Howe.

Royal F. Martin, athletic director at Otterbein for the past 20 years, will continue as professor of physical education. Dr. Howe said. John K. Cox, of Steubenville, has been designated as assistant coach. Cox, a former Colgate star, has coached at Martins Ferry high school for the past few years.

COVETED TITLE BEING SOUGHT AT TRAP SHOOT

VANDALIA, Aug. 25 — Ten former champions and other top-notch clay target marksmen were to compete today in the Grand American Handicap, feature and windup event of the 40th annual trapshooting tournament at Vandalia.

The center of attraction as the match was to get under way was W. R. Winteringham, 51-year-old printing plant superintendent of Barrington, Ill., who yesterday won the preliminary handicap by breaking 99 of 100 targets.

Old timers pointed out, however, that the main event seldom has been won by a person who won the preliminary. For several years "unknowns" have taken the coveted title.

New national doubles champion is John Riggs, 52, of Conshohocken, Pa., who beat a field of 206 by cracking 97 of 100 targets.

The professional doubles championship went to C. J. Mos, of Cincinnati, who broke 94 of 100. Meanwhile, his daughter, Florence, 29, shattered 98 of 100 to lead the feminine contingent in the amateur doubles and to tie eight men for the runner-up position. Phil Miller, of French Lick, Ind., won second place in the shootoff.

In the preliminary handicap the professional contingent was headed by Homer Clark, of Altam, who cracked 97 of 100 at 33 yards.

Brooklyn Crew Hottest In Loop; Cards Bumped

By Lawton Carver
 NEW YORK, Aug. 25—The Brooklyn Dodgers are the hottest ball club in the National league at the moment and the pennant race is the tightest in years. Strange developments of the last few days have failed to shake the Cincinnati Reds and they still lead by 5 1/2 games, but they are struggling and the second place St. Louis Cardinals are in their worst slump of the year.

The Dodgers, who beat the Cardinals three straight through Wednesday, won their fourth in a row last night, beating the Reds, 4 to 2. The Cardinals obligingly refused to gain any ground, bowing to the Philadelphia Phillies, 6 to 5. Pressnell pitched the Dodger victory and Mulcahy and Johnson hurled for the Phillies.

Thus the Chicago Cubs, who

OHIOANS IDLE FRIDAY

Presnell Edges Shoffner Under Lights; Two Tilts Booked For Day

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—Despite another defeat, this time at the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers, the Cincinnati Reds today retained their 5 1/2 game National league lead because the second-place St. Louis Cardinals also lost.

A crowd of 34,000 turned out to see the Dodgers trim the leading team 4 to 2 behind the eight-hit pitching of Tot Pressnell. Brooklyn is in fourth place and has won five straight games. Both teams were idle today.

The Dodgers bunched three of their six hits in the fifth inning to take the lead, which they never lost. Singles by Camilli, Todd and Stainback accounted for the first run. Durocher was passed purposely, then the second tally was chalked up while Pressnell was being thrown out. A sacrifice fly brought in the third run.

In the sixth, Al Todd hit a home run for the final score.

The Reds got under way in the eighth but the rally netted them only two runs on Bongiovanni's pinch single, Myers' double and an infield out.

Shoffner was the Cincinnati loser.

Only two games were scheduled for today in the National league. They were Pittsburgh at New York and Chicago at Boston.

BIRDS BLANKED BY FAST KANSAS CITY BALL CLUB

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 25—The pace-setting Kansas City Blues and the Columbus Red Birds were to meet again tonight to play off a series tie because each team won one game of a double-header.

The Blues won the opener 2 to 0 but lost the nightcap 5 to 2, dropping one-half game from their slim lead over the Minneapolis Millers, now one and one-half games behind.

Pitcher Tommy Reis won the first game for Kansas City, and Lee Sherrill took the second easily after the Birds scored four runs in the first inning. Triplett added the other tally in the fifth with a homer.

At Minneapolis the Millers trounced Indianapolis 8 to 3. Credit for the victory went to Bill Butland, 21-year-old right-hander, who allowed 12 hits but kept them scattered.

The St. Paul Saints, playing at home, defeated the Louisville Colonels 5 to 4. The victory gave the Saints the edge in the opening round of the final battle for a chance at the Association place playoff.

Scrimmage Near For Tiger Crew

Coach Roy Black expects to start scrimmage sessions with his Red and Black grid hopefuls sometime next week, following a full week of gruelling fundamentals, signal drills and blocking and tackling. The boys will be hardened sufficiently by the middle of the week to turn on, the Tiger mentor believes.

The squad, somewhat reduced because some of the athletes are working and others are recovering from minor operations, has been working hard for two full hours each day beginning with last Monday. "Nearly all the boys who have reported out there to work for the good of the team," the coach said. "They have shown a willingness to get ready for the opening game and I believe we'll have a fast and fighting team."

Scrimmage Near For Tiger Crew

Coach Roy Black expects to start scrimmage sessions with his Red and Black grid hopefuls sometime next week, following a full week of grueling fundamentals, signal drills and blocking and tackling. The boys will be hardened sufficiently by the middle of the week to turn on, the Tiger mentor believes.

The squad, somewhat reduced because some of the athletes are working and others are recovering from minor operations, has been working hard for two full hours each day beginning with last Monday.

"Nearly all the boys who have reported out there to work for the good of the team," the coach said. "They have shown a willingness to get ready for the opening game and I believe we'll have a fast and fighting team."

The question of weight predominates in the mentor's plans. According to his present program he will have Bob Bowsher and big Russ Liston backing up the line on defense, Bowsher being assigned to the fullback spot and Liston playing center from which spot he will pull back on the defense. Using Bowsher in the backfield takes some much needed weight from the line, but according to the coach's plans he will be of much use in the secondary.

The question of tackles is paramount, the coach and his aide, Tom Armstrong, scanning their squad daily in hope of uncovering a big enough boy to take over a line post. Harold Hill, when he reports, is expected to hold down one side of the line.

The backfield with which the coach has been working all week includes Frank Geib, at quarterback, Marvin Jenkins, Joe Staley and Jim Moorehead at the halves, with Bowsher at full. Harold Smith, triple threat star of last year's team, has not yet reported because he is working. Moorehead recently removed to Circleville from Celina where he made a varsity letter as a freshman.

Sometime notes... Paul Walters, with an ouchy toe, and Moe Harden, with his tonsils just removed, have been watching the drills until they are able to participate; the former will be at end and the latter at a guard. . . . Scrapy Howard Orr will give someone a tussle for the other end post and so will Charlie Zaenglein. . . . John Sabine, Charlie Hart, Jim Shea and Bob Brown may do some surprising by making the competition for line jobs mighty tough. . . . These four boys spell the word fight with a capital F. . . . First football casualty of the year did NOT happen on the high school field. . . . Glen Barnhart broke his left arm below the elbow during some scrimmaging on Pleasant street. . . . Young Bernie has not been out for the squad. . . . First game is against Holy Rosary of Columbus on the local balliwick, Sept. 15 being the date. . . .
